Every Child Matters -- The number of human remains found at residential schools has gone from 215 children to over 1,000 so far. As we wait and pray for Canada's indigenous peoples to be able to engage us in dialogue again, we have set up a physical memorial by tying orange ribbons on our signs and placing an orange T-shirt, children's shoes and children's socks at the entrance sign. Orange is the colour of reconciliation and the colour of the Orange Shirt Society who supports Indian residential school reconciliation: they have given us permission to use their slogan "Every Child Matters". We invite you to place children's shoes at the entrance sign, children's socks on the clothesline along our parking lot and/or something orange where people passing your home can see it (trail tape around a pole or tree, a shirt or sign on an exterior door or window, etc.) Socks may be donated to families afterwards; shoes will not. Contact Andy Pitter or the office if you'd like a sign.

Contact Katie or Don if you'd like to read one of the resources we have regarding Truth and Reconciliation. (Note the green ribbons on our signs are to remember the Muslim family killed in June and to show solidarity against Islamophobia.

Book Sale for Camp Sponsorships – Christian Development is working on our future library with many thanks to Sylvia Jacquard and her students for their help. Our team has gone through all our books for the library and some didn't make the cut so we've decided to give them new homes! Books on the table at the back of the sanctuary are available to the congregation for a free-will donation. Donations will go towards Christian Development's camp sponsorship drive!

Seeking Lay Supervision Team members for Katie Logan - We are looking for interested members to form the Lay Supervision Team for our new student minister, Katie Logan. A Lay Supervision Team (LST) meets for conversation and mutual reflection, providing an opportunity for the student to listen to the faith, views, contexts, values, and wisdom of a smaller group within a larger community, a microcosm of the pastoral charge. A LST accompanies the student through the process of formation for the practice of ministry. This will include commitment to regular meetings for exploration, discussion, and implementation of assigned work within the MDiv program, as well as theological reflection and evaluation of all learning experiences. A successful group will have a sense of mutuality in sharing and discussion and a sense that everyone is learning. Katie needs a team of 3-6 people who agree to meet more or less monthly September to April. To express your interest, please write to christina.macdonald@gmail.com.
